Trainee Consultant Radiographer

I am a wife, married to Togara, who works as an Infrastructure engineer for a Law firm in the Birmingham City centre. I am mother of two, a 16-year-old girl who is currently studying her 'A' levels and a 10-year-old boy.

I am currently working as a Trainee Consultant Radiographer in the Breast Unit. Originally from Zimbabwe I came to the country 20 years ago after completing my 'A' levels. With the desire to advance myself mentally, physically and academically I joined the British Army. At first I was a military clerk and then transferred into the Royal Army medical core where I trained as a radiographer.

I have been a radiographer for 11 years, working in plain imaging then specialising as a breast radiographer. I undertake breast ultrasound scans and I am also a film reader. I have just started my interventional module and will complete my training with a dissertation next year.

What does the BAME network mean to me?

For me the formation of the BAME network is very important because it highlights the contribution and importance of individuals, communities and cultures that have all played a part in all aspects of our lives today. Black Lives Matter and Black Mind Matters.
